What is Digital Literacy?

Why is Digital Literacy Important?

What Does Digital Literacy Look Like?

Benefits of Digital Literacy for Students

How to Teach Digital Literacy

Digital Literacy Resources

As seemingly everything becomes more digitized or internet / computer dependent, having the tools and wherewithal to navigate a digital-first world has never been more important.

These skills, known as digital literacy, are not only required for business professionals to use in the working world, but also for at-risk youth as they attempt to learn digitally in today's education environment and to compete in today's workforce.

This has put the onus on the need for teachers and at-risk youth community trainers to learn how-to integrate digital literacy transformation training into their curriculum. The need is there, but not every teacher or community at-risk youth trainer has experience with these curriculum, courses, and lessons.

Here is teaching digital literacy to youth with our Digital Literacy Transformation Master Trainer Academy training program and courses.

What is a Digital Literacy Transformation Train-the-Trainer Course?

A digital literacy transformation train-the-trainer course provides a clear understanding of how-to-use and to interpret digital literacy and it includes several types of digital skills such as:

1. Basic computer skills

To prepare youth to obtain above average abilities to navigate and to understanding the inner workings of a computers and it effective use on the internet.

2. Online reading comprehension skills

To teach youth how-to-read and to interpret online internet information that is necessary for successful idea evaluation and transfer to one-self and other individuals.

3. Digital literacy goals.

To present research-based insights, best practices, and strategies for meeting unique learner needs, especially in digital literacy.

What Are Digital Literacy Transformation Train-the-Trainer Courses & Certification Programs?

Digital literacy transformation train-the-trainer courses and certification programs will help teachers and at-risk youth community trainers to teach at-risk youth how-to-develop a strategy to successfully work with digital and online tools.

We've compiled a list of digital transformation training online training courses and programs for at-risk youth that cover different areas of digital literacy transformation for teachers and at-risk youth community trainers.

What is Digital Literacy?

UNICEF defines digital literacy as “the knowledge, skills and attitudes that allow children to flourish and thrive in an increasingly global digital world, being both safe and empowered, in ways that are appropriate to their age and local cultures and contexts.”

Through the lens of education, we like to think of digital literacy as a student’s ability to use digital tools and technologies to work, learn and interact. Digital literacy manifests as both a cognitive and technical skill.

Why is Digital Literacy Important?

Digital literacy is important for a number of reasons:

1. Digital literacy can improve online learning,
2. Digital literacy will help students discern online misinformation and
3. Digital literacy gives them access to a wide variety of online resources.

Most importantly, children are more exposed to the digital world than older generations. UNICEF reports that 70% of 15–24-year-olds are on the internet, so they are developing digital skills all on their own.

This leaves room for them to develop poor digital literacy, unless there is purposeful instruction in their training.

6 Benefits of Digital Literacy Transformation Master Trainer Academy training program and courses.

Beyond being a basic and mandatory skill to teach at-risk youth how-to move about in today's digitally connected world, there are a number of specific benefits that teachers and at-risk youth community trainers will provide their at-risk youth trainees once they gain digital literacy transformation skills:

1. They will Improve their writing, reading, listening and speaking skills;
2. They will have the ability to identify authentic information and materials;
3. They will Increase their frequency and ability to use digital technology;
4. They will enhance their ability to collaborate with teachers and peers;

To be digitally literate, one must demonstrate five key competencies. These are known as the pillars of digital literacy:

Information and Data Literacy Skills

Our train-the-trainer training program and courses will teach teachers and community at-risk youth trainers to help at-risk youth to articulate information needs and to locate and retrieve digital data, information and content.

They will also teach them how-to judge the relevance of the source and its content. And also, to store, manage, and organize digital data, information and content.

Communication and Collaboration Skills

Our train-the-trainer training program and courses will teach teachers and community at-risk youth trainers to help at-risk youth to interact, communicate and collaborate through digital technologies while being aware of cultural and generational diversity.

They will also teach them how-to participate in society through public and private digital services and participatory citizenship; and o manage one's digital presence, identity and reputation.

Safety

Our train-the-trainer training program and courses will teach teachers and community at-risk youth trainers to help at-risk youth to protect devices, content, personal data and privacy in digital environments.

They will teach them how – to protect physical and psychological health, and to be aware of digital technologies for social well-being and social inclusion, as well as to be aware of the environmental impact of digital technologies and their uses.

In teaching students and at-risk youth our courses, the trainer will provide the student and at-risk youth with several digital literacy transformation skills, and they will obtain a broad understanding of the digital world and the tools required to navigate it.

Students and at-risk youth who possess these digital literacy transformation skills will be able to:

- Fact checks information
- Identify reputable sources and conduct research
- Participate in online communication
- Cite sources and copyrighted material
- Discern biases from word choice and sentence structure
- Find and identify images and videos

How We Will Teach Digital Literacy Transformation Master Trainer Academy Train-the-Trainer Program Courses

To teach digital literacy transformation courses, it will help if the teacher or at-risk youth community trainer is digitally literate themselves. Once armed with these skills, there are a number of steps that our train-the-trainer program courses that teachers and community at-risk youth trainers can take to actively and passively teach our digital literacy transformation courses.

( 1 ) We Will Teach You How-to Emphasize the Importance of Critical Thinking

This will help the students to learn how to evaluate information resources, to identify bias, points of view, motivation and more from online resources. Being good online means using only reliable information, and that starts with teaching how-to- think critically.

( 2 ) We Will Provide Guidance on How to Teach Finding Reliable and Trustworthy Resources

Finding reliable and trustworthy resources is one thing, but properly using and citing these resources is another. Throughout their education careers, students will conduct lots of research activities, and they need to know how to properly cite their resources without copying them word-for-word.

( 3 ) We Will Teach You How-to-Teach Students to Manage Their Online Identity

As they say, social media is forever, so what your students post now will still be accessible when they are adults. This will matter when applying to college or to jobs, so students want to be sure they cultivate a positive online identity.

( 4 ) We Will Teach You How-to-Help Students to Manage Digital Distractions

With omnichannel access to the digital world, it's easy to get distracted by the online world. You will learn how-to-teach students about boundaries, setting limits and the importance of not spending every waking moment online.

This will not only help protect their eyes, but it will also ensure they are exposed to a variety of resources and experiences.

( 5 ) You Will Learn How-to-Teach Students About Online Safety

There are billions of people online, so to ensure that a student safely uses digital technology is very important. Parental control is a good start, but students also need to know how to protect themselves.
